Overview

Executive Summary:

Al-Shabaab, or “the Youth,” is al-Qaeda’s formal affiliate in East Africa. Established in the late 1990s, the Somali-based terror group seeks to establish a fundamentalist Islamic state in the country that it hopes will ultimately expand to encompass the whole Horn of Africa. Al-Shabaab controls much of the southern Somalia region and small pockets in Kenya and Ethiopia along the Somali border. In areas under the group’s control, al-Shabaab imposes its strict version of sharia (Islamic law), prohibiting activities like listening to music or shaving one’s beard. The group predominately conducts attacks targeting the Somali government and the African Union Mission to Somalia (AMISOM). On March 31, 2022, the U.N. Security Council voted unanimously to endorse the African Union’s new transitional mission in Somalia. The new mission, African Union Transition Mission in Somalia (ATMIS), will replace AMISOM, which has been in operation in the country for 15 years.¹

According to a letter al-Qaeda leader Osama bin Laden addressed to unidentified al-Shabaab officials, al-Shabaab has reportedly been loyal to al-Qaeda since before August 2010. However, bin Laden urged the group to not publicly identify itself as part of al-Qaeda.² Following the group’s pledge of allegiance to al-Qaeda in 2012, al-Shabaab began executing a score of violent attacks in Somalia’s neighboring countries, including the September 2013 Westgate Mall attacks in Nairobi, Kenya, which left 68 people dead and 175 wounded. The group is also responsible for the April

Al-Shabaab

2015 Garissa University attacks, wherein five al-Shabaab fighters stormed the Kenyan university, killing nearly 150 people. Since then, the group has continued to attempt and conduct terrorist attacks outside of its stronghold in Somalia. In al-Shabaab's first attempt to attack Western targets, an assailant detonated a concealed laptop bomb on a Daallo Airlines flight leaving Mogadishu for Djibouti City on February 2, 2016. The explosion, which killed only the attacker, was not strong enough to down the plane. Al-Shabaab reportedly killed more than 4,200 people in 2016, making it the deadliest Islamic terror group in Africa. In October 2017, al-Shabaab was credited with the worst terror attack in Somalia to date—a truck bomb that killed over 300 people in Mogadishu.³

Doctrine:

Al-Shabaab's ideology is typically described as a brand of Salafism and Wahhabism that supports takfir, the excommunication of apostates or unbelievers. Though it has stated many goals in the past, the group fights first and foremost to create a fundamentalist Islamic state in the Horn of Africa⁴ that would include not only Somalia but also Djibouti, Kenya, and Ethiopia.⁵

Under al-Shabaab's strict brand of sharia, stonings, amputations, and beheadings are regular punishment for criminals and apostates. The group violently persecutes non-Muslims and clashes frequently with humanitarian and international aid workers.⁶ Out of an estimated 6,000-12,000 fighters as of March 2016, only a small handful are believed to be ethnically non-Somali.⁷

The precursor to al-Shabaab is Somali rebel group al-Itihad al-Islami (AIAI), which targeted the Siad Barre military regime during the Somali Civil War in the 1990s. After the Barre regime fell, a younger, more hardline group split from the AIAI, seeking to extend AIAI's mission and establish a "Greater Somalia" ruled under sharia. This group of youths—in Arabic, "al-Shabaab"—joined forces with the Islamic Courts Union (ICU) in an attempt to enforce sharia throughout Mogadishu. In December 2006, U.S.-backed Ethiopian forces invaded Somalia and drove the ICU out of the capital. Though the majority of the ICU fled to neighboring countries, al-Shabaab retreated southward and began organizing attacks against the Ethiopian forces. In this way, al-Shabaab transitioned from a rebel group into a guerrilla movement and began seizing territory in central and southern Somalia.⁸ Al-Shabaab grew from a few hundred fighters in the 2006 to thousands by 2008, as Islamist-nationalist fighters sought to drive out the Ethiopian occupation.⁹ Since the end of the Ethiopian occupation in 2008, al-Shabaab has continued to its efforts to establish sharia domestically and attack government representatives and African Mission forces, while also adapting its foreign targets from Ethiopia to Kenya following a brief Kenyan invasion in 2011. Al-Shabaab views the AMISOM—and as of 2022, AMISOM's replacement, the African Union Transition Mission in Somalia (ATMIS)—as well as the Somalia Federal Government, as its primary enemies since they are purportedly influenced by Western countries.¹⁰

Al-Shabaab formally pledged allegiance to al-Qaeda in 2012, though ties between them existed since 2008, when the American-born al-Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula (AQAP) cleric Anwar al-Awlaki released a statement praising al-Shabaab for fighting against the U.S.-backed Ethiopian invasion. In 2010, AQAP deputy leader Saïd al-Shihri also released a statement encouraging al-Shabaab to work with his group in its fight against the United States.¹¹ Following the pledge of allegiance, some al-Qaeda fighters who trained at camps in Afghanistan moved to Somalia to train members of al-Shabaab. The two groups continue to cooperate closely, on everything from indoctrination and basic infantry skills to advanced explosives and assassination training. Al-Shabaab and AQAP partake in the transfer of fighters and weapons between Yemen and Somalia. Al-Shabaab fighters have been able to obtain new weapons and develop new tactics from AQAP, including the use of laptop explosives and more destructive car bombs.¹² Al-Qaeda reportedly plays an important role in al-Shabaab's leadership, with one count reporting that foreigners comprise over half of al-Shabaab's executive council and that the group has embraced globalized rhetoric and propaganda.

Analysts cite the early militant Salafi extremist group al-Itihad al-Islami (AIAI, a.k.a. Unity of Islam) as the precursor to al-Shabaab and the incubator for many of its leaders. AIAI peaked in the 1990s after the Siad Barre military regime fell and civil war broke out.¹³ A younger, hardline group split from the elder AIAI, seeking to establish a "Greater Somalia" ruled under sharia. This group of youths joined forces with the Islamic Courts Union (ICU), a group of sharia courts, to serve as a governance alternative once they overtook Mogadishu. The combined group was eventually pushed out by Ethiopia. Much of the ICU fled to the south of Somalia and al-Shabaab emerged and continued asymmetrical attacks on Ethiopian targets.

This context is important in understanding a key characteristic of the group—it is not monolithic and is prone to internal fissures over strategy and tactics. These conflicts became particularly significant when whole clans broke from al-Shabaab in 2008. Reports highlighted increased leadership conflicts over tactics, clan interests, affiliations with al-Qaeda, and policies toward international aid agencies.¹⁴

Ahmed Abdi Godane eventually triumphed over internal opposition with a series of purges in 2011 and a particularly bloody internal battle in June 2013. One of the implications of Godane's victory is that the core group's doctrine and affiliation seem to have been settled. Though al-Shabaab has always had a Salafist jihadist orientation, the group's leadership was once heterogeneous, including nationalist and politically pragmatic figures like Hassan Dahir Aweys and Mukhtar Robow. The al-Shabaab that triumphed arose from the extreme fringe, steeped in the takfiri ethos that legitimizes the killing of other Muslims and a recommitment to global jihad and restoration of the Caliphate.¹⁵

Godane, no longer faced with internal opposition to aligning with al-Qaeda, officially pledged al-Shabaab's allegiance to that group in 2012. Afterward, some al-Qaeda fighters who trained at camps in Afghanistan moved to Somalia to train members of al-Shabaab. The two groups continue to cooperate closely on everything from indoctrination and basic infantry skills to advanced explosives and assassination training. Al-Qaeda reportedly plays an important role in al-Shabaab's leadership, with one count reporting that foreigners comprise over half of al-Shabaab's executive council and that the group has embraced globalized rhetoric and propaganda.¹⁶ Out of an estimated 3,000 to 5,000 fighters, 200 to 300 are non-Somali, with a number coming from the Somali diaspora.¹⁷

Following Godane's death in 2014, Ahmed Umar Abu Ubaidah, previously known as Ahmed Diriye, was appointed as emir. In November 2019, Ubaidah appeared in a video for the first time and named the United States as the group's primary target and demanded supporters attack Americans wherever they could.¹⁸

Organizational Structure:

Al-Shabaab is a hierarchical organization led by its emir ("prince" or "commander") Ahmed Umar Abu Ubaidah. Answering to Abu Ubaidah are a set of regional commanders who manage the group's presence in southern Somalia and Mogadishu, Bay and Bokool, Puntland and Somaliland, and Juba Valley.¹⁹

Abu Ubaidah has also appointed a Shura council of 10 members who oversee al-Shabaab's regional commanders. The council establishes al-Shabaab's policy, which is expected to be followed by local administrations within the group's territory.²⁰ Aiding the Shura council are junior leaders who are in charge of al-Shabaab's media branch, law enforcement, and military operations. The group's media branch, al-Kataib (The Brigade), is responsible for producing video recruitment and propaganda content which is then disseminated for international audiences.²¹

The leader of al-Shabaab's military operations, previously Abdullahi Haji Da'ud,²² oversees two separate branches, the Jaysh Al-'Usr (army of hardship) and the Jaysh Al-Hisbah (army of morality). Led by regional military leaders, the Jaysh Al-'Usr serves as the group's major external military apparatus. The Jaysh Al-Hisbah functions as the group's religious police force, enforcing sharia in areas of al-Shabaab's control.²³

Financing:

Al-Shabaab has had several sources of income throughout its history, including varying degrees of support from the Somali diaspora, locals, sponsors, and sustained dawa (proselytizing).

Domestically, al-Shabaab drew significant revenue from racketeering after seizing the southern port city of Kismayo in 2008. The charcoal trade was essential to the city's economy and the group was able to receive proceeds from exporting charcoal, totaling an estimated $35-50 million annually.²⁴ Although AMISOM was able to take back Kismayo in October 2012, the United Nations has reported that al-Shabaab's illicit charcoal trade has continued in areas under the group's control, such as Barawe, and estimates that profits from this city alone amount to millions of dollars monthly.²⁵ The United Nations banned charcoal exports from Somalia in 2012. In October 2014, as part of an effort to target al-Shabaab's funding, the U.N. Security Council authorized the inspection of ships suspected of carrying Somali charcoal.²⁶

According to the U.N., sugar imports grew in late 2012, in connection with the increased production of charcoal, and thereafter increased for transport over the Kenyan border.²⁷ This cyclical trade, with charcoal exports in return for sugar imports that are eventually sold in Kenya for a lower price, is one way the group has sustained itself, despite losing control of the Kismayo port. Al-Shabaab is also able to facilitate cash flows within Somalia through the rise of mobile money transfer companies subject to less scrutiny.²⁸ The International Crisis Group also reported in 2014 that al-Shabaab copes with a volatile financial environment and intermittent cash flow by investing in gold.²⁹

After the June 2013 purge of Godane's opposition within the leadership, al-Shabaab shifted its attention toward "taxation"—specifically, collecting funds through voluntary support, extortion, and partnership with businesses, humanitarian agencies, and other non-governmental organizations that operate in south-central Somalia.³⁰ According to the United Nations, al-Shabaab has generated up to $100 million per year, from fees levied at ports of entry, taxes on goods, taxes on domestic produce, “jihad contributions,” checkpoint fees, and extortion for payments of religious obligation.³¹

Central to al-Shabaab’s taxation and extortion practices is the use of roadblocks between Baidoa and Mogadishu as well as between Mogadishu and the Lower Shabelle region. Each roadblock along these paths earns al-Shabaab $5,000 a day extorting merchants. This money largely comes from money distributed to internally displaced persons (IDPs) by the United Nations and associated aid agencies. The United Nations issues IDPs living in refugee camps in Baidoa cash cards of $80 to $90 a month, which allows them to purchase necessities from merchants traveling from Mogadishu. On their way to and from Baidoa, these merchants are stopped and taxed at al-Shabaab roadblocks, thereby unwillingly transferring U.N. funds to the terror group. While the regional Somali government and the United Nations have confirmed these practices, the U.N.’s head of country, Michael Keating, has insisted that most of the aid still reaches IDPs.³²

Al-Shabaab has also reportedly received funding from the governments of Eritrea, Iran, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Qatar, and Yemen, the majority of which have denied these claims.³³ Al-Shabaab agents have also raised funds internationally. For example, in September 2014, prosecutors in Finland charged four people who allegedly collected “thousands of euros” for al-Shabaab between 2008 and 2011.³⁴ In October 2016, two women in the United States were convicted for organizing a group of women from eight different countries that funded al-Shabaab.³⁵

Recruitment:

Al-Shabaab’s recruitment efforts take place primarily within Somalia and Kenya, though its online recruitment strategy has targeted the United States as well.³⁶

Staying true to its name, which means “The Youth,” al-Shabaab seeks to recruit Somali adolescents and young adults.³⁷ Boys as young as 9 years old have been forced into al-Shabaab’s ranks.³⁸ In January 2017, U.N. Secretary-General Antonio Guterres estimated that more than half of al-Shabaab’s fighters may be children. A Somali taskforce recorded the recruitment of 4,213 children—almost all boys—into al-Shabaab between April 1, 2010, and July 31, 2016. According to a 2017 U.N. report, children “recruited and used by al-Shabaab were victims of or were exposed to other grave violations including killing and maiming during military operations and air strikes targeting al-Shabaab, and subjected to arrest and detention by Somalia security forces.”³⁹

According to Somali officials, al-Shabaab needs younger recruits to replace aging fighters. The group has kidnapped children from schools, forcing others to flee al-Shabaab-controlled areas to avoid conscription. In early August 2017 alone, more than 100 children fled from al-Shabaab-controlled areas of Somalia for the safety of government-controlled areas of the country. Officials have estimated that more than 500 children have fled their homes to escape conscription into al-Shabaab.⁴⁰

Al-Shabaab uses children in combat and reconnaissance roles, according to the U.N.⁴¹ A 14-year-old Somali recruit, interviewed by the Institute for Security Studies in September 2014, said, “[W]hen you join, they give you a mobile phone and every month you get $50. This is what pushes a lot of my friends to join.” Another member recalled how during his recruitment experience “[P]reachers delivered sermons for hours about destiny and the sweetness of the holy war. They distributed leaflets on Islam [and] showed video recording from other jihadist [sic] in the world.”⁴²

While al-Shabaab recruits males, it has also kidnapped Muslim and Christian women in Somalia and Kenya as sex slaves. The group has forced some girls and women to work in brothels while forcing others into marriages with al-Shabaab fighters.⁴³ Al-Shabaab has regularly killed women and girls who refuse forced marriages to al-Shabaab fighters.⁴⁴

Al-Shabaab has attempted to influence Somali families toward Islamism. The group’s Education and Youth Engagement released its own curriculum in early 2017, focusing only on Quran, math, history, and geography.⁴⁵ That April, the group released a statement instructing Somali parents to shun public schooling and send their children to Islamic schools. The group warned of “consequences” for parents and teachers who embrace secular education.⁴⁶

Al-Shabaab has a sophisticated public relations arm that “includes a Twitter account and video production abilities.”⁴⁷ The group’s use of social media for propaganda has attracted recruits from around the world. Al-Shabaab also disseminates recruitment videos dubbed in English and Somali. A video released in 2010 depicts a combatant attempting to recruit young fighters: “So what are you waiting for my brothers, why don’t you leap forth for this act of worship? Join us so that we can together fight the forces of kufr [unbelief]...”⁴⁸

Another video includes an English-language rap: “[M]ortar by mortar, shell by shell, only going to stop when they go to hell.”⁴⁹

Within Somalia, recruiters infiltrate remote, rural areas and approach potential recruits. There have been accounts of recruiters threatening the lives of Somali Muslim men who initially resist joining the group.⁵⁰

In 2013, Kenyan human rights lawyer Al Amin Kimathi described al-Shabaab’s recruitment process based on information gathered from interviews with detainees:

“They are given quotations from the Koran, the Hadiths, but they do not have the benefit of a critical mind to look at it in any other context and they trust the people driving them to this. Advantage is taken of the person’s feeling of desperation and that is dangerous enough to drive them over the top. They are given the feeling that they are a very important person and that martyrdom is something to aspire to - the anger over their deprivation is lowered to a feeling of comfort, to a point where the only thing they aspire to is a collective action. Whether that action leads to their survival or death that doesn’t really matter any more [sic].”⁵¹

Recruitment in Somalia

Al-Shabaab provides social services to increase its support among Somalis, partaking in infrastructure construction and collecting money to be redistributed to the poor.⁵² Somali youths are also offered salaries of up to $700 a month for joining the militant group, and promised additional payments if they bring a wife and children. Since 2009, al-Shabaab recruiter Sheikh Ahmad Iman Ali has recruited children between the ages of 12 and 16 living in Somalia’s impoverished regions. According to Kenyan authorities, children in those areas reportedly lack basic housing, clothing, and food, which al-Shabaab typically provides in exchange for their recruitment.⁵³ According to one report from 2012 the primary reason that former al-Shabaab fighters claimed they joined the militant group was for a religious identity, the lack of education and employment, influenced by family or friends, and the need for a collective identity and a sense of belonging.⁵⁴

Recruitment in Kenya

Al-Shabaab recruiters radicalize young Kenyan Muslims—often converts to Islam—with extremist sermons. Personal accounts reveal that recruiters use psychological manipulation to increase enrollment in the terror group. A disillusioned former recruit said that deceased al-Shabaab member and radical Kenyan cleric Aboud Rogo Mohammed “used to tell us: ‘Instead of sitting in the slum doing nothing, it’s better to go to Somalia and fight for your religion, you’ll go straight to heaven.’”⁵⁵

Once the recruits are prepared to join al-Shabaab, they travel to remote islands off of Kenya’s coast, which are only a couple hours away from Somalia by boat. From these islands, radical preachers guide them to their final destination, Somalia.⁵⁶

Recruitment in the United States

U.S. Representative Edward Royce (R-CA), chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, warned in late 2013 that “al-Shabab has demonstrated a unique ability to recruit young members of the Somali diaspora in the United States....”⁵⁷

Americans began traveling to Somalia to join al-Shabaab in 2007 when the terror group stepped up its insurgency against Somalia’s transitional government. Most American fighters for al-Shabaab have been radicalized in Minneapolis, Minnesota, home to the largest Somali diaspora in the U.S.

The FBI contends that al-Shabaab has made an “active and deliberate attempt” to recruit American fighters in person and over the Internet. A 2011 U.S. House Committee on Homeland Security investigation found that al-Shabaab recruiters have used mosques and cafes as meeting places to radicalize and recruit.⁵⁸ Alabama native Omar Hammami appeared in several online videos in which he urged foreigners in English to “live the life of a mujahid.” Al-Shabaab has released a host of other online recruitment videos depicting American foreign fighters.

Training:

Due to the lack of governance in Somalia, al-Shabaab has been able to manage specialized training camps with little domestic interference. In addition to a hand-to-hand combat camp in Ras Kiamboni and suicide bombing camps in Elberde and Mogadishu, al-Shabaab has managed a hostage training camp in Eel Arfid.⁵⁹ Al-Shabaab has also recruited women, although they are reportedly sent to training camps for the sole purpose of being taken as brides.⁶⁰

Core al-Qaeda had an influence on al-Shabaab training since before al-Shabaab formally pledged allegiance to al-Qaeda in 2012. A 2011 report by the U.S. House Committee on Homeland Security found that American recruits were receiving training from senior al-Qaeda operatives, some with ties to al-Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula.⁶¹ Also as of 2011, Pakistani-born al-Qaeda operative Abu Musa Mombasa was reported to be al-Shabaab's head of security and training.⁶² Under the auspices of core al-Qaeda, the group has increasingly focused on its explosives and suicide-bomber training program.⁶³

Today, al-Shabaab recruits undergo a six-month training process.⁶⁴ According to the FBI, training includes "reading and interpreting the Koran, physical exercise, and weapons handling." Such weapons include AK-47 assault rifles and rocket-propelled grenades.⁶⁵ At one graduation ceremony open to media, 300 trainees became members. The new graduates were able to choose which sector of al-Shabaab to join. Graduates can sign up for a combat unit, become bomb-makers, or work for the group's security network, the Amniyat. Standout recruits have the special opportunity to join the years-long waiting list for the Istishadyin unit, the group's suicide brigade.⁶⁶

In September 2014, the U.S. conducted a drone attack on an al-Shabaab training camp south of Mogadishu. The attack killed al-Shabaab's leader at the time, Ahmed Abdi Godane.⁶⁷ In March 2016, another al-Shabaab training camp was targeted in a U.S. drone strike north of Mogadishu, which killed over 150 militants.⁶⁸ A U.S. strike in June 2017 reportedly destroyed an al-Shabaab training camp near Sakow, Somalia, which also functioned as a "key command supply hub," according to the Somali government.⁶⁹

History:

- July 13, 2023: Al-Shabaab militants seize Gherille Forward Opening Base (FOB) in Jubaland, Somalia near Kenya's border. The militants ambush soldiers, engaging in intense gunfighting and killing at least three. The seizure is significant as it enables al-Shabaab to more readily carry out attacks in Kenya. Source: "Somalia: Al-Shabaab seizes key base near Kenya's border," Garowe Online, July 13, 2023, <https://www.garoweonline.com/en/news/somalia/somalia-al-shabaab-seizes-key-base-near-kenya-s-border>.
- July 6, 2023: Al-Shabaab's Shahada News Agency publishes an article titled "Somalia, A Repeat of Afghanistan?" The article claims al-Shabaab cannot be defeated and that Somalis are more willing to be ruled by Islam than democracy. The author then suggests that the U.S. engage in direct talks with al-Shabaab in the same capacity Washington engaged with the Taliban in Afghanistan in previous years. - June 13, 2021 - August 1, 2021: In a letter to the U.S. Congress, U.S. President Joe Biden stated that he approves the deployment of American special troops to Kenya to boost the region's counterterrorism efforts.

The soldiers will join forces with Kenyan forces to counter al-Shabaab which has increased its raids on Kenya's northeastern and coastal regions. The number of troops and the deployment timeline were not reported. The U.S. troops will reportedly advise, assist, and accompany Kenyan troops on their counterterrorism operations, with the U.S. also conducting a small number of airstrikes against al-Shabaab in Somalia. The first drone strike conducted was on July 20, in Galkayo and the other was on July 23 in Qeycad, Galmudug Province. - January 20, 2021: Following the inauguration of U.S. President Joe Biden on January 20, the United States has not launched a single airstrike against al-Shabaab in Somalia.

On the day of Biden's inauguration, National Security Adviser Jake Sullivan issues a mandate that would limit counterterrorism drone strikes outside of Afghanistan and Syria. According to the order, the U.S. military and the C.I.A. will have to obtain White House permission to launch strikes in countries with minimal American ground troops. Given the tighter controls on U.S. airstrikes, senior Somali military officials express fear that al-Shabaab operatives will gather momentum and "bring their battle wagons out...[and] start to gather in large numbers again." Al-Shabaab

Violent history:

As al-Shabaab lost control of urban centers, its tactics shifted to asymmetrical attacks, with greater reliance on suicide bombs, IEDs, hit-and-runs, political threats, assassinations, and grenade attacks.⁷¹ The group's new tactics emphasized collaboration with its historical enemies in Somalia, resulting in alliances and deals that make it difficult for external actors to dismantle the group.⁷² Godane's suppression of internal opposition allowed him to drive al-Shabaab towards more indiscriminate modes of violence similar to al-Qaeda's.

Al-Shabaab was reportedly responsible for more than 4,000 fatalities in 2016, according to the U.S. Department of Defense-affiliated Africa Center for Strategic Studies, based on data collected from the Armed Conflict Location & Event Data Project (ACLED). As a result, al-Shabaab reportedly overtook Boko Haram as Africa's deadliest terror group. ACLED attributed 3,499 fatalities to Boko Haram in 2016, while ISIS killed 2,350 people.⁷³ A Washington Post analysis disputed the findings, however, claiming that al-Shabaab actually killed 432 people in 2016, while Boko Haram killed 790. The Washington Post explained the discrepancy because ACLED included all acts of violence without specifically labeling which were acts of terrorism. The Post also counted only incidents where al-Shabaab was the primary actor involved.⁷⁴

The majority of the group's attacks are retaliatory against perceived injustices against Muslims and against al-Shabaab's mission in Somalia. Targets includes the U.S. and other Western countries, as well as those states, such as Uganda and Kenya, who have contributed to troops to AMISOM.

In April 2017, new Somali President Mohamed Abdullahi Farmajo declared war on al-Shabaab while offering al-Shabaab fighters a 60-day amnesty period. The government offered to provide employment and education to fighters who surrendered during this period. The group formally rejected the offer and the declaration of war the following day. On April 9, an al-Shabaab suicide bomber killed at least 15 people in an attack near a military base in Mogadishu.⁷⁵

As outlined below, al-Shabaab has engaged in both guerrilla and terror tactics since its inception. A key differentiator and contributor to its sustainability as an organization is al-Shabaab's adaptability. This military and political flexibility is assisted by the leadership's lack of direct accountability to a constituency,⁷⁶ enabling them to carry out any number of attacks on whatever targets they choose. One of the major developments within the organization has been its tactical shifts and hybridization of violent attacks, combining both suicide bombers and suicide infantry.⁷⁷ According to Matt Bryden at the Center for Strategic and International Studies, the Westgate Mall attack was the culmination of successfully tried and tested tactics, techniques and procedures honed back home in Somalia.⁷⁸ Specifically, al-Shabaab understood from past experience that breaching the perimeter of the mall would be necessary to overtake it, so their typical suicide-bombing tactic would not work there. Consequently, the group used hand grenades to penetrate the structure.

Timeline of Violent Activities:

- July 14, 2023: Al-Shabaab carries out four attacks in Mandera County, Kenya. Among the locations targeted are the Jabibar Quick Response Unite (QRU) camp, the Elwak Kenya Defence Forces camp, and the Wargadud police station. Three fatalities are reported in Wargadud, where the militants destroyed a communications mast before ambushing the police station.⁷⁹
- July 14, 2023: An al-Shabaab suicide bomber detonates an explosive in Mogadishu's Hodan district. The area is likely targeted as it is a known residence area for military officers and other government officials. The explosion kills at least eight. That same day, al-Shabaab militants ambush a security checkpoint in Tiida, Mogadishu. At least three soldiers are killed in the ambush before the militants retreat.⁸⁰
- July 5, 2023: Suspected al-Shabaab militants ambush a Special Operations Group (SOG) unit in Ogorwen, Mandera County, Kenya. At least eight soldiers are killed.⁸¹
- June 25, 2023: Suspected al-Shabaab militants attack two villages in Lamu County, southeast Kenya near the border of Somalia. The militants kill five.⁸²
- June 21, 2023: Al-Shabaab militants ambush a military base hosting Ethiopian and Somali troops in Baardhere, southern Somalia. The ambush involves two suicide attacks, killing an unspecified number of soldiers.⁸³
- June 19, 2023: Al-Shabaab militants ambush civilians in Daru Nicma, Middle Shabelle, Somalia. Around 30 people are kidnapped from the village which was recently liberated from the militants.⁸⁴
- June 17, 2023: Al-Shabab publicly executes five people in Kunyo-Barrow, southern Somalia, for alleged spying. The men were convicted by an al-Shabaab court of spying for the Somali government and foreign intelligence agencies and providing intelligence on the militants.⁸⁵

- June 14, 2023: A vehicle carrying Kenya police officers accidentally detonates an improvised explosive device in Garissa county, eastern Kenya on the border with Somalia. The explosive, which was reportedly planted by al-Shabaab, kills eight police officers.⁸⁶
 - June 9, 2023: Al-Shabaab militants are suspected of carrying out two high-casualty attacks. In Mogadishu, al-Shabaab detonates an explosive at a restaurant killing nine and injuring 20 others. Somali security forces arrived at the scene and rescue 84 civilians. According to media reports, security forces reportedly “neutralized the al-Shabaab militants responsible for the terrorist attack.” That same day in Qoryoley, southern Somalia, a child accidentally strikes an explosive device near a playground. The explosion kills 22, most of whom were children. Al-Shabaab is suspected of planting the explosives.⁸⁷
 - May 30, 2023: Al-Shabaab militants ambush a Somali special forces base in the central Galguduud Region. The assault targeted newly deployed troops returning from training in Eritrea. The ambush included a suicide car bomb before militants raided the base. Al-Shabaab claims at least 73 soldiers are killed.⁸⁸
 - May 26, 2023: Al-Shabaab militants drive a car laden with explosives into an African Union (AU) military base in Bullo Marer, southwestern Somalia. The militants then engage in a gunfight with the AU soldiers, ultimately killing 54 Ugandan peacekeepers.⁸⁹
 - March 14, 2023: A suicide bomber detonates an explosive-laden car at a building housing senior military officials in Bardera, southern Somalia. The explosion kills at least five and wounds 11 others. Al-Shabaab claims responsibility for the attack.⁹⁰
 - March 7, 2023: Al-Shabaab militants overrun Janay Abdale military base in Jubbaland. The militants, who cut communications in the area to prevent calls for reinforcements, attacked the base with a car bomb and gunfire. Al-Shabaab militants then reclaim control of Janay Abdale, a military base the Somali National Army only reclaimed from the militant group in January. Casualty figures were not reported.⁹¹
 - February 22, 2023: Al-Shabaab militants attack a residential building in Mogadishu. The attack kills 10 and injures several others before security forces are able to repel the insurgents. The building was allegedly targeted as it housed senior Somali military officials and members of the local militia troop, the Macawisley.⁹²
 - February 15, 2023: Kenyan troops collide with an IED along the Dadaab-Garissa Highway in northwestern Kenya. The explosion, which reportedly targeted the elite Border Patrol Unit, kills four. Security services suspect al-Shabaab is responsible for planting the IED.⁹³
 - January 17, 2023: Al-Shabaab detonates a car packed with explosives outside a Somali military base in Hawadley, north of Mogadishu. The explosion kills seven. The military base was retaken from al-Shabaab in October by government forces and clan militias.⁹⁴
 - January 14, 2023: Al-Shabaab carries out three bombings in Hirshabelle, central Somalia. In Bulobarde town, a suicide bomber detonates an explosive laden car near a police station and the base of the African Union peacekeepers from Djibouti. The explosion kills at least 11 and wounds 50 others. In Jalalaqsi, two bomb explode near a Somali military checkpoint. The explosions kill at least four. According to media sources, the terrorists supposedly retaliated against the towns of Jalalaqsi and Bulobarde as the two communities recently attempted to mobilize against the militant group.⁹⁵
 - January 6, 2023: Al-Shabaab militants raid a village in Hilowle Gaab, central Somalia. The ambush kills at least six.⁹⁶
 - January 4, 2023: Al-Shabaab militants detonate two car bombs in Hiraan region, central Somalia. The explosions, which reportedly targeted two military bases in Mahas, kill at least 35 and wound at least 40 more.⁹⁷
 - December 25, 2022: Al-Shabaab releases 14 Iranian fishermen who were kidnapped in international waters close to Somalia. The men were held from four to eight years. According to Iranian news agency ISNA, their release was secured following “lengthy negotiations with government officials, tribal chiefs and Somali elders.” The fishermen were discovered in November 2022 when Somali police claimed they found 20 foreigners—the Iranians as well as six Pakistanis—near militant-controlled land.⁹⁸
 - November 27, 2022: Al-Shabaab militants detonate an explosive and open fire on a Mogadishu hotel frequented by Somali political officials. The hotel was targeted given that Somalia’s ministers and members of parliament frequent the establishment. The militants take control of the hotel before they are brought down by Somali forces the next day. The attack kills eight civilians and a soldier and injures one other.⁹⁹
 - November 21, 2022: An al-Shabaab gunman enters a military base in the Lower Jubba region of Somalia, near the border with Kenya. The assailant kills three Kenyan peacekeepers.¹⁰⁰
 - November 7, 2022: Al-Shabaab militants detonate two suicide car bombs and ambush a military base in Galgaduud region, central Somalia. The attack kills at least 10 soldiers. After pushing the militants out of the base, security forces began to pursue the jihadists in the surrounding jungles.¹⁰¹
 - November 2, 2022: Suspected al-Shabaab members abduct four people in Mandera, Kenya, near the border of Somalia. The abductees were in an ambulance and included two paramedics as well as a driver and patient. The hospital later lost communication with the vehicle.¹⁰²

- June 19, 2009: Somalia National Security Minister Omar Hashi Aden is killed in a large-scale suicide car bomb attack in Beletwyne. Over 30 people are killed in the attack. The group seeks to intensify its strategy to strong-arm the Somali-population, focusing on high-target assassinations and clan elders.³⁴⁴
- February 2009: Al-Shabaab successfully uses explosive vests in a sophisticated attack against African Union (AU) military bases in Mogadishu. They employ a mix of person-borne improvised explosive devices (PBIEDs) and vehicle-borne improvised explosive devices (VBIEDs), followed by indirect fire. Similar tactics were used in a September bombing at an AU military base.³⁴⁵
- October 29, 2008: The first known American suicide bomber for al-Shabaab, Shirwa Ahmed, is part of attack in Hargeisa that kills 24 people. Ahmed was a Somali-American from Minnesota who trained with al-Shabaab.³⁴⁶

Al-Shabaab

Associations:

Ties to Entities Designated by the U.S. or Foreign Governments:

Al-Shabaab publicly praised al-Qaeda between 2006 and 2008, condemning U.S. oppression of Muslims worldwide. In 2010, the group announced that it sought to “connect the horn of Africa jihad to the one led by al-Qaeda.”³⁷⁰ Al-Shabaab officially announced its union with al-Qaeda in February 2012. Following Godane’s death in September 2014, the group and its new leader reaffirmed the alignment.³⁷¹

Ties to Other Entities:

Al-Shabaab has an affiliated network, including al-Hijra (formerly known as the Muslim Youth Center) in Kenya.³⁷² After the Westgate mall attack in September 2013, evidence emerged that al-Hijra assisted al-Shabaab militants in executing the attacks. Al-Hijra is a group of primarily Kenyan-Somali and non-Somali Muslim followers of al-Shabaab in East Africa.³⁷³

Media Coverage:

Arab and African Media

Arab news outlets have reported on the two-decades-long conflict within the failed state of Somalia and the contagion it has caused in east Africa. Al-Shabab confirmed many media reports stating after the Westgate shopping mall attack was in retaliation for Kenyan support of AMISOM's mission in Somalia, and demanded that Kenya pull out. The group's first reprisal mission for Godane's death in Uganda was ultimately foiled by Ugandan security forces. A few years earlier, the group claimed responsibility for killing 76 people in Kampala, citing Uganda's participation in AMISOM as a motive as well.³⁷⁴

Militant profiles have emerged in African news media. Al-Shabab defectors are shown as traumatized and pressured victims. One former member told how, at 13 years of age, he joined the group after they took control of his town.³⁷⁵

In light of Godane's death, several news sources question the viability of Ahmed Umar Abu Ubaidah as a leader and the stability of the organization, and how it would bode for security in the region.

Both Arabic and African news outlets show concern for what a splintered group could mean for the movement and the region. The East African notes that the group will most likely tap into its cells across East Africa and make a push for recruitment.³⁷⁶ Though the group's strategic and tactical directions are uncertain, analysts maintain the group will try to position itself as more global in nature. Such positioning could include strengthening ties with al-Qaeda in the Islamic Maghreb (AQIM), Boko Haram, and ISIS.³⁷⁷ This direction could be indicated by al-Shabab's recommitment to al-Qaeda shortly after Abu Ubaidah's appointment as the new leader. The group could also potentially splinter and morph into a different structure, especially if internal power struggles recur.³⁷⁸

To a lesser but significant degree, news outlets have highlighted the 45-day amnesty that the Somali government has extended to al-Shabab fighters who renounce the group.³⁷⁹ Horn of Africa news website Sabahi, sponsored by U.S. Africa Command, highlighted President Mohamud's 60-day extension of the amnesty on October 27, 2014, claiming that after the initial edict, approximately 30 militants surrendered daily. The national amnesty offered, in lieu of punishment, a nine-month rehabilitation program and a subsequent return to normal life.³⁸⁰

In contrast, Western media coverage put less emphasis on the amnesty program, preferring to focus on al-Shabab's ties to al-Qaeda and now potentially to ISIS. Godane, for example, is believed to have established ties with ISIS militias during their expansion into Syria and Iraq and offered al-Shabab fighters in support.³⁸¹

Western Media

Western news outlets focus on U.S. military efforts to stop the group due to its ties to al-Qaeda, including the U.S.'s role in striking al-Shabab militants³⁸² and in launching the drone strike that killed Godane.³⁸³ Connections to al-Qaeda have also raised concerns about al-Shabab planning attacks overseas.³⁸⁴
