Overview

Executive Summary:

Hizb ut-Tahrir (HT), meaning “Party of Liberation,” is an international Islamist movement seeking to unite Muslims under one Islamic caliphate.¹

Founded by Palestinian Taqiuddin al-Nabhani al-Filastyni in 1953, HT considers itself a non-violent political party.² HT states that its goal is to peacefully convert Muslim nations to Islamist political systems.³ HT praises the concept of jihad but insists that it does not use “material power to defend itself or as a weapon....”⁴ The group publicly disavows efforts to achieve its goals of a caliphate through violent means.⁵

HT has been banned in at least 13 countries worldwide.

However, individuals affiliated with the group have been linked to violent acts in multiple countries. Some have been involved in coup attempts in the Middle East,⁶ the murder of a pro-secularist blogger in Bangladesh,⁷ and spreading anti-Western and Muslim-separatist propaganda in the West. HT maintains that its members are political dissidents.⁸

HT has been called a “conveyor belt” for terrorists by Zeyno Baran of the Hudson Institute.⁹ Baran notes that HT members, once radicalized by the group’s ideology, are vulnerable to more explicit messages of militancy.¹⁰ One example is British citizen Omar Sharif, who attempted to blow up a Tel Aviv bar in 2003. British intelligence officers found HT literature in Sharif’s U.K. home.¹¹ Another example is ISIS fighter “Jihadi John” (now deceased), who reportedly attended events with HT speakers while in university in Great Britain.¹²

HT chapters operate in more than 40 countries, but the group is banned in many Muslim-majority countries, including Egypt, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Turkey, and Uzbekistan. The group is also banned in China and Russia.¹³ The United Kingdom has not banned HT. According to Baran, HT’s

Hizb ut-Tahrir

British chapter in London is the “nerve center” of the international movement.¹⁴

While HT promotes the concept of a caliphate, it does not recognize the so-called caliphate created by ISIS. On July 2, 2015, HT Britain published a statement denouncing ISIS’s June 2014 declaration of an Islamic state because ISIS lacked the authority to create or secure a caliphate in Syria.

British prime ministers Tony Blair and David Cameron called for banning HT in 2009 and 2011, respectively.¹⁸ However, David Anderson, then the U.K. government’s independent reviewer of terrorism legislation, submitted a report to Parliament in 2011 recommending against banning HT as it had not advocated violence.¹⁹ The British Home Office has also ruled that HT does not advocate violence and that Britain cannot ban the group for having unpopular ideas.²⁰ The Home Office did concede, however, that HT is antisemitic, homophobic, and anti-Western.²¹

Former Australian Prime Minister Tony Abbott’s failure to ban HT in that country prompted his government to propose a law prohibiting speech deemed “advocacy to genocide.”²² Attorney General George Brandis said the proposed law was aimed at groups like HT. In September 2015, Brandis and the Abbott government announced the “advocacy to genocide” legislation as part of a package to be introduced in parliament later that year.²³ However, later that month, Malcolm Turnbull defeated Abbott for the leadership of Australia’s Liberal party and consequently, for the office of prime minister. Australia’s Daily Telegraph reported in October 2015 that the Turnbull government would abandon its predecessor’s attempts to ban HT and to advance the “advocacy to genocide” bill.²⁴

Doctrine:

HT seeks to establish a global caliphate and presents its Islamist ideology (based on the writings of the organization’s founder, Taqiuddin Nahbani) as an alternative to both capitalism and secular democracy.²⁵ HT proposes the restoration of a caliphate as a solution to the problems in the Middle East,²⁶ with all Muslims living according to sharia (Islamic law) under the rule of an Islamic caliphate.²⁷ HT insists that it seeks to reestablish the caliphate only in the Muslim world, not “in any of the western countries including the US.”²⁸ However, HT uses anti-Western propaganda to advance its Islamist objectives. For example, HT blames purported anti-Muslim discrimination in the West and violence against Muslims in Muslim-majority countries on Western domestic and foreign policies.²⁹

HT seeks to erect a global caliphate.

The group’s strategy to create a global caliphate is divided into three phases. The first phase is to create a core Muslim leadership to guide HT. In the second phase, this core leadership reaches out to the broader Muslim community and convinces them to follow HT’s model of Islam.³⁰ HT’s extensive outreach activities around the world indicate that the group is currently focusing on this second phase of its strategy.

The third and final stage of HT’s mission is regime change. Once HT has obtained sufficient public support for its vision of a caliphate, HT expects that support to facilitate a peaceful transition to Islamist rule. HT doctrine officially eschews violence and believes “Islamic law forbids violence or armed struggle against the regime as a method to reestablish the Islamic State.”³¹ Only the caliph of the Islamic state—a position that does not yet exist—can declare jihad under HT doctrine. Further, HT believes “military struggle is not the method of reestablishing the Caliphate.”³²

However, HT does not foreclose the possibility that a transition to Islamist rule could also transpire through a military coup if, for example, enough soldiers were converted to HT’s worldview. Despite hoping for military support to overthrow current regimes, HT still positions itself as a non-violent movement, HT’s doctrine considers military intervention to be outside help (nusrah) since the military is not a direct arm of HT.³³ Analysts studying the HT movement have implicated HT members in failed military coups in Jordan (1968 and 1969) and Egypt (1974).³⁴ However, HT members did not provide any military support for these coups. In the case of Jordan, HT members allegedly encouraged members of the military to overthrow the government.³⁵

Since HT presents Islam as an exclusive socio-political system superior to secularism and democracy,³⁶ the group urges Muslims to detach themselves from any secular or nationalist loyalties. To that end, HT spreads an Islamist narrative of Muslim grievance and victimhood,³⁷ oversimplifying the complex global socio-political environment into a single, simple narrative: the West opposes Islam.³⁸ This narrative can result in an identity crisis for some Muslims, which opens the door for their radicalization, according to a 2007 radicalization study from Denmark’s justice ministry.³⁹ One possible example of HT-inspired radicalization is the case of 15-year-old Farhad Jabbar in Parramatta, Australia. Jabbar shot and killed a police accountant in October 2015 and reportedly attended an HT event the morning of the shooting.⁴⁰ HT Australia denied that Jabbar is a member and condemned the shooting, but it also called “western foreign and domestic policy” the “real cause of violence.”⁴¹

HT promotional materials have called for violence against Jews.

Despite its official non-violent stance, HT has called for violence against Jews. In 2002, HT leaflets found in Denmark urged Muslims to kill Jews “wherever you find them, and turn them out from where they have been [sic] turned you out.” A BBC report quoted the HT leaflet further: “The Jews are a people of slander...a treacherous people... they fabricate lies and twist words from their right context.”⁴² In 2003, similar antisemitic rhetoric resulted in the group being banned from many university campuses in Britain and a complete ban of the group in Germany.⁴³

HT supports not only violence against Jews in general but offensive jihad against Israel in particular.⁴⁴ HT believes Israel has “occupied Islamic lands”—lands once ruled by Islamic law. Accordingly, HT believes those lands should return to governance by Islamic law and supports jihad as a means to that end.⁴⁵

Accordingly, HT views violent acts against Israel as legitimate political protest against Israel’s existence as a state. The organization’s literature has supported Islamist suicide bombings in Israel, the Gaza Strip, and the West Bank.⁴⁶ In 1994, HT’s global leader, Ata Abu Rashta, reiterated this point when he declared that Jews who came to Palestine after the collapse of the Ottoman Empire have no right to live there. He called for all Jews of fighting age in Israel to be “killed until none survive.”⁴⁷

At least one HT-related person is believed to have attempted a suicide bombing in Israel. British citizen Omar Khan Sharif was reportedly affiliated with an HT splinter group.⁴⁸ He began attending HT meetings while at King’s College in London.⁴⁹ Sharif reportedly followed former HT leader Omar Bakri Mohammed to his new group, al-Muhajiroun.⁵⁰ On April 30, 2003, Sharif and fellow British citizen Asif Muhammad Hanif attempted a suicide bombing at a Tel Aviv bar.⁵¹ Sharif’s explosives failed, but Hanif killed three and wounded 50.⁵² HT denied responsibility for radicalizing Sharif.⁵³

On social issues, HT’s ideology is reactionary. HT dictates subservient roles for women, who are required to obtain their husbands’ permission to leave the house and cannot go outside wearing perfume.⁵⁴ HT’s doctrine also forbids homosexual acts and prohibits participation in other faiths’ celebrations, such as Christmas.⁵⁵

Organizational Structure:

HT is a hierarchical organization with as many as 1 million members throughout the world.⁵⁶ HT boasts of a presence in at least 33 countries and maintains a central media office in Beirut, Lebanon.⁵⁷ Each country has a local chapter led by an emir, who answers to HT’s overall emir, Ata Abu Rashta.⁵⁸ While Abu Rashta’s exact location is unknown, he continues to lecture at Islamist conferences worldwide and new rhetoric from him regularly appears on HT websites.

In each of these chapters, men and women are encouraged to be active members of the movement but work separately in order to keep the genders apart. HT’s vision of a future Islamic state reserves the highest positions—including caliph, provincial governors, and defense minister—for men alone.⁵⁹ Once an Islamic state is established, the caliph would select a defense minister,⁶⁰ who would then enforce conscription to the caliphate’s army of all Muslim men over the age of 15. While women are encouraged to join and participate in HT, they are forbidden from filling leadership roles like defense minister.⁶¹

Some of the most active HT chapters are listed and described below:

United Kingdom:

HT Britain is the nerve center of the organization.

HT’s British chapter (HT Britain) is considered the nerve center of the global movement.⁶² HT’s operations in the United Kingdom are led by HT Britain’s chief executive, Dr. Abdul Wahid.⁶³ HT’s spokesperson, Taji Mustafa, engages the media on behalf of the movement, and has spoken at HT conferences in other countries like Australia.⁶⁴ Because HT is allowed to operate freely in Britain, HT Britain recruits members by hosting public conferences and panels, and by engaging with the British media on a regular basis. HT Britain also maintains a website, where its positions on foreign and domestic policy are made available through articles and video.

Hizb ut-Tahrir

On both Twitter and Facebook, HT Britain has amassed over 11,000 followers.⁶⁵ Local HT Britain chapters organize their own fundraising to support outreach efforts, such as printing and handing out leaflets in public spaces.⁶⁶ HT Britain has also benefited from government funding, including grants to run early education programs.⁶⁷ The British government ended this funding program after media reports confirmed that HT members were using the funding to indoctrinate students with controversial HT ideology, including the belief that tolerance and integration are un-Islamic.⁶⁸

Individuals known to have been in contact with HT Britain have gone on to join more violent Islamist groups. For example, notorious ISIS executioner Mohammed Emwazi (a.k.a. Jihadi John) was in contact with the group while studying at British universities before he joined ISIS.⁶⁹

United States:

HT operates freely in the United States, although the group keeps its leadership and membership numbers private. HT America recruits members by hosting periodic conferences and panels, as well as maintaining a website and social media accounts. The HT America website includes articles advocating its policy positions and information on upcoming events around the country.

HT America has more than 28,000 followers on Facebook.

HT America has amassed more than 1,000 followers on Twitter, up from more than 300 followers in 2016.⁷⁰ Meanwhile, the group's Facebook page has more than 28,000 followers as of May 2017, up from more than 20,000 in early 2016.⁷¹ HT America has held multiple conferences across the United States over the years at such prominent venues as the Hilton hotel in Oak Lawn, Illinois.⁷² Other venues in Illinois, like the Chicago Marriott Oak Brook and the Meadows Club in Rolling Meadows, have canceled HT America events after receiving concerned calls from the public.⁷³

Australia:

HT Australia is led by Islamist cleric Ismail al-Wahwah.⁷⁴ Since HT is free to operate in Australia, HT has recruited members by hosting public conferences and panels, and by engaging regularly with Australian media. HT Australia also maintains a website, where the group posts content highlighting the movement's philosophy, positions on political issues, and planned events in the country.⁷⁵

The group also maintains a strong public profile on social media. Al-Wahwah has more than 4,000 followers on Facebook,⁷⁶ and the group's Facebook page has more than 26,000 likes as of May 2017, up from 9,000 likes in January 2016.⁷⁷ HT Australia's media spokesperson, Uthman Badar, tweets regularly to more than 7,000 people.⁷⁸

In October 2015, a 15-year-old who shot and killed a police accountant in Parramatta, Australia, had reportedly attended an HT discussion at his local mosque on the morning of the incident.⁷⁹ In December 2014, Iranian-born Man Haron Monis took more than a dozen people hostage at Sydney's Lindt Chocolat Café. Monis and two hostages were killed after a 16-hour standoff with police. Monis had attended a June 2014 HT lecture on the failings of the West.⁸⁰

In March 2017, international media circulated video footage of Badar stating that apostates—those who leave Islam—should be put to death.⁸¹ In response, anti-HT activists in Australia launched an online petition to have the group banned.⁸²

Denmark:

HT Denmark was founded in 2000 by former HT member Maajid Nawaz, and others.⁸³ Today, the group is popularized by its spokesperson Junes Kock.

The Copenhagen-based branch of HT considers itself a regional office as indicated by its name HT Scandinavia.⁸⁴ Outside of Denmark, HT Scandinavia has hosted events and distributed leaflets in Stockholm, Sweden.⁸⁵ HT Scandinavia has a website that highlights the group's work, policy positions, and planned events in the region.⁸⁶ On Facebook, the group has amassed more than 6,000 likes as of May 2017, up from 4,000 in February 2016.⁸⁷

Since its founding, HT's operations in Denmark have been steeped in controversy. In 2003, former HT spokesperson in Denmark Fadi Abdelatif served a 60-day suspended sentence for distributing antisemitic propaganda.⁸⁸ Moreover, while HT Scandinavia is not proscribed in Denmark,

Hizb ut-Tahrir

Danish MPs have discussed banning HT in Denmark in 2008 and 2015 because of the group's inflammatory speeches.⁸⁹

HT's Danish leadership frequently focuses its attention on the Palestinian-Israeli conflict.⁹⁰ On February 14, 2015, Imam Hajj Saeed spoke at an HT Scandinavia event, wherein he denounced interfaith dialogue. He also implied that since Islam's prophet Muhammad waged war with the Jews in Medina, it was permissible to do the same today.⁹¹ Saeed's sermon was delivered the day before a terrorist attack in Copenhagen, wherein 22-year-old gunman Omar El-Hussein killed two and injured five while attempting to enter a cultural center that was hosting a free-speech event.⁹²

Netherlands:

Not much is publicly known about HT leadership in the Netherlands, though it is known to include media representative Okay Pala. On Twitter, Pala has accrued more than 3,000 followers.⁹³ The HT Netherlands Facebook page has more than 13,000 likes, as of May 2017, representing a growth of almost 200 percent since February 2016, when the page had little more than 5,000 likes.⁹⁴ HT Netherlands also maintains a website highlighting its policy positions, activities, and planned events in the country.⁹⁵

While the organization is allowed to operate in the Netherlands, some private venues in the country have been unwilling to host HT events, including the Rotterdam-Zuid community center De Put, which rejected hosting an HT panel in September 2015.⁹⁶ HT has persisted in its recruitment and publicity strategy by handing out HT literature in Dutch in Rotterdam.⁹⁷

Australia, the U.K., and Netherlands have each sought to ban HT.

Consequently, Netherlands has unsuccessfully attempted to ban HT.⁹⁸

Pakistan:

HT is not allowed to operate in Pakistan. Nevertheless, the organization remains active on social media and through outreach efforts that primarily target members of the military and educated classes.⁹⁹ HT Pakistan engages the public regularly through its website and social media activity. HT Pakistan's Twitter account has more than 6,000 followers,¹⁰⁰ and its Facebook page has more than 19,000 likes as of May 2017, up from more than 5,500 in March 2016.¹⁰¹ The group's illegal status in Pakistan notwithstanding, the number of HT Pakistan's Facebook followers increased more than 300 percent over the previous year.¹⁰²

Pakistani authorities periodically arrest HT members despite the group's ban in 2003.¹⁰³ For example, the group maintains that the Pakistani government abducted its leader, Naveed Butt, in 2012, and has since been advocating for his release.¹⁰⁴ In November 2015, Pakistani authorities arrested HT Pakistan leader Siham Qamar and seven others during a series of raids.¹⁰⁵

The New York Times noted in 2012 that "special concern arose in Pakistan" after an army brigadier named Ali Khan was charged in 2011 with "having ties to HT, and of conspiring to overthrow the [Pakistani] government."¹⁰⁶ Khan and four others were convicted in 2012.¹⁰⁷ The incident highlights HT's efforts to recruit Pakistan's military leadership in hopes of replacing the government with a caliphate.

Bangladesh:

HT was banned in Bangladesh in 2009.¹⁰⁸ Since then, HT has continued its activities in the country, despite sporadic arrests of alleged members.¹⁰⁹ HT Bangladesh recruits members by hosting conferences and passing out HT literature in public.¹¹⁰ HT Bangladesh also maintains a website. The group's Facebook account has more than 1,300 likes.¹¹¹

In March 2015, Bangladeshi authorities arrested HT member Farabi Shafiur Rahman in connection with the murder of secular blogger Avijit Roy.¹¹² Rahman joined HT in approximately 2010. He had previously been arrested in 2010 and again in 2013 for threatening a cleric performing funeral rites for another atheist blogger who had been murdered.¹¹³

Bangladeshi authorities have arrested more than 600 HT supporters since the group was banned. In June 2016, HT Bangladesh was reportedly distributing leaflets calling for rebellion against the "tyrannical rule" of Bangladeshi Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina Wazed.¹¹⁴

Malaysia:

Hizb ut-Tahrir

HT Malaysia's leadership includes spokesman Abdul Hakim Othman and vice president Sopian Jahir.¹¹⁵ HT operates freely in Malaysia, except in the province of Selangor, where HT was proscribed in September 2015.¹¹⁶ Outside of Selangor, HT recruits members by hosting periodic conferences and seminars.¹¹⁷

HT Malaysia also maintains a website and official Twitter and Facebook accounts. The group's Twitter account had more than 2,000 followers as of January 2016, but has since been discontinued.¹¹⁸ Its Facebook page has more than 26,000 followers as of May 2017, up from 13,000 followers in March 2016.¹¹⁹

In November 2015, Malaysian authorities briefly arrested HT Malaysia's former spokesperson, Abdul Hakim Othman, in connection to anti-American protests during President Obama's visit to Malaysia that month.¹²⁰ On September 17, 2015, the Islamic Religious Department of the Malaysian state of Selangor issued a fatwa outlawing HT Malaysia within its jurisdiction.¹²¹ Othman attempted to respond to the edict banning the group by holding a press conference in Selangor on December 4, 2015, but was arrested during the event.¹²² Othman was released later the same day.¹²³

Indonesia:

HT Indonesia's spokesperson, Muhammad Ismail Yusanto had more than 31,000 followers on Twitter as of May 2017, representing an increase of 7,000 followers since January 2016, when he had more than 24,000 followers.¹²⁴ Yusanto regularly engages Indonesian media to advocate HT positions in the country.¹²⁵ While membership numbers are unknown, HT events have included more than 100,000 attendees at some conferences.¹²⁶ HT Indonesia's website is regularly updated with articles and videos addressing domestic and foreign politics and social issues from an HT perspective.¹²⁷

In 2011, HT Indonesia's chairman, Rochmat Labib, told the Associated Press that HT's 10-year plan in Indonesia is to "reinforce the people's lack of trust and hope in the regime."¹²⁸ Further, he said, HT is "converting people from democracy, secularism and capitalism to Islamic ideology."¹²⁹ In 2016, HT organized protests accusing Jakarta's Christian governor, Basuki "Ahok" Tjahaja Purnama, of blasphemy.¹³⁰ In May 2017, Purnama was found guilty of blasphemy and sentenced to two years in prison.¹³¹

On May 8, 2017, Indonesian President Joko "Jokowi" Widodo ordered a ban of HT activities. Security Minister Wiranto told media that HT has "clearly caused conflict in society" and worked against Indonesia's pluralistic society.¹³²

Central Asia:

In Central Asia—including Uzbekistan, Kazakhstan, and Kyrgyzstan—HT membership is estimated at between 20,000 and 100,000, with members typically including college students, teachers, the unemployed, and factory workers.¹³³ New members are also drawn through prison recruitment in Central Asia.¹³⁴ Uzbekistan is believed to have as many as 8,000 HT members.¹³⁵ In the late 1970s, HT outreach spread from Uzbekistan to neighboring Kyrgyzstan and Kazakhstan. There, HT's membership has expanded to include non-ethnic Uzbeks, ethnic Russians, and Koreans.¹³⁶

HT financing in Central Asia is believed to come from private donations and dues paid by members, with dues estimated at anywhere from 5 percent to 20 percent of a member's monthly income.¹³⁷

Financing:

HT appears to be funded through several means, including private donations and government subsidies, but few details about the group's finances are public. Local chapters organize their own fundraising to support outreach efforts, such as printing and handing out leaflets in public spaces.¹³⁸ Operational costs appear low because many members do volunteer work. Donations are primarily raised in Europe, the Middle East, and Pakistan.¹³⁹ Pakistan recalled diplomatic envoy Mohammad Mazhar Khan from Bangladesh in March 2015 after receiving allegations that he had laundered money to HT and other Islamist militant groups in Bangladesh.¹⁴⁰

HT has also benefited from government funding. For example, a British foundation run by HT members received government grants to run early education programs.¹⁴¹ The British government ended the funding after media reports confirmed that HT members were teaching students HT ideology, including the belief that tolerance and integration are un-Islamic.¹⁴²

Recruitment:

Recruitment is crucial to HT's overarching strategy. As a self-purported peaceful movement for regime change, HT must gain sufficient public support to realize that change. In countries where the group is not banned, HT's outreach efforts include passing out literature in public spaces, organizing seminars,¹⁴³ and releasing pro-Islamist publications, such as The Institutions of State in the Khilafah [caliphate], online.¹⁴⁴ HT also operates websites in multiple languages that provide access to HT literature, such as political commentary and religious justifications for the movement's worldview.

Conferences are another critical method for HT to spread its message. HT has held multiple conferences in the United States, including at least three "Khilafa [caliphate] conferences" in 2015. The conferences focused on answering questions surrounding a future Islamic caliphate. These questions include, "What is Khilafah," "Why Khilafah," "Who is Hizb ut-Tahrir," and "How we work for Khilafah."¹⁴⁵ HT America held multiple rallies and conferences through 2016 as well, including its annual Khilafa Conference at the Ramada Inn in Glendale, Illinois, that May. HT returned to the hotel in April 2017 for its annual conference, which the group dubbed as "a global call to Muslims worldwide to stand up and fulfill the obligation to resume the Islamic way of life, as decreed by Allah (SWT), by reestablishing the Khilafah on the path of our Prophet (SAW)." In 2012, then-presidential candidate Michelle Bachmann questioned whether an HT event in Rolling Meadows, Illinois, was "subversive speech." In 2009, protests were held in front of an HT event in Oak Lawn, Illinois.¹⁴⁶

In the United Kingdom, HT operates freely and publicly, holding conferences and conducting outreach programs at numerous U.K. universities. In 2003, the British Home Office concluded that it could not ban an HT conference in Birmingham that year since HT professed to be non-violent. Approximately 10,000 people attended.¹⁴⁷

HT outreach to students relies on access to campus events at universities. In the United Kingdom, HT recruits and maintains an active presence on university campuses. British media have reported that HT radicalized future ISIS fighter Mohammed Emwazi, a.k.a. "Jihadi John" (now deceased), and other future prominent jihadists before they traveled to fight in the Middle East.¹⁴⁸ Emwazi attended Britain's University of Westminster, where he was exposed to HT ideology through the university's Islamic Society.¹⁴⁹ During Emwazi's years as a student at the University of Westminster, the Islamic Society organized on-campus panels that included HT members as speakers.¹⁵⁰ The university has been the subject of several accusations that HT has infiltrated its campus.¹⁵¹

British counter-extremism activist Maajid Nawaz is a former HT member who was drawn to the group as a teenager.¹⁵² As a student at London's Newham College, Nawaz continued to spread HT's message until he was expelled when his self-appointed bodyguard stabbed and killed a non-Muslim student.¹⁵³ According to Nawaz, HT seeks to recruit members of student groups, such as the University of Westminster's Islamic Society, and exploits freedom of speech to showcase speakers who "peddle a highly politicized, often violent strain" of Islam.¹⁵⁴

Nawaz warns it "is easier than one might think for bright, capable people like Mr. Emwazi to fall for the myopic worldview of the preachers of hate. Young people from relatively prosperous, educated backgrounds have long been overrepresented in jihadist causes."¹⁵⁵ In April 2011, for example, Westminster students elected Tarik Mahri and Jamal Achchi, both tied to HT, as president and vice president, respectively, of the student union.¹⁵⁶ As president of Westminster's Global Ideas Society, Mahri had been instrumental in bringing HT speaker Jamal Harwood to campus.¹⁵⁷

Dr. Alexandra Stein is a social psychologist specializing in extremist groups. While teaching at Westminster between 2007 and 2012, Stein noticed a "tremendous amount of recruiting" at the school.¹⁵⁸ Stein recalled female Muslim students telling her they had been pressured to wear veils and sit in the back of classrooms at university-sanctioned HT lectures.¹⁵⁹ Because of the university's tolerance of HT campus activities, "students were being led like lambs to the slaughter," according to Stein.¹⁶⁰

HT also enjoys a strong presence in the Middle East and Asia. In Central Asia, the group operates through underground channels, where 2003 membership ranged from 20,000 to 100,000.¹⁶¹ Recruits include college students and teachers, the unemployed, and factory workers. Central Asian authorities believe HT also recruits heavily in prisons.¹⁶²

HT is particularly active in Indonesia and Malaysia. On August 12, 2007, HT hosted a Khilafa (caliphate) conference in Indonesia to discuss the need for a global Islamic state. Although several speakers canceled due to travel restrictions by Indonesia and other countries, the conference attracted approximately 100,000 participants. Organizers called it the largest gathering of Muslim activists in the world.¹⁶³

Since the beginning of the Arab Spring, HT has intensified its recruitment efforts in the Middle East, seemingly to take advantage of political voids left by toppled dictatorships and ongoing civil wars.¹⁶⁴ HT outreach includes efforts to highlight the humanitarian crisis created by the current conflicts. In March 2012, for example, HT hosted a women-only conference in Tunisia. The group organized a protest in Aleppo, Syria, on November 9, 2012, and a press conference in Amman, Jordan, in April 2013 to highlight the Syrian civil war's impact on women and children.¹⁶⁵

History:

- January 19, 2024: Following parliamentary approval, the United Kingdom proscribes HT as a terrorist organization. Following the proscription, membership in HT becomes a criminal offense with a potential prison sentence of 14 years, which can be handed down alongside or in place of a fine. Source: "Hizb ut-Tahrir proscribed as terrorist organization," Gov.UK, January 19, 2024, <https://www.gov.uk/government/news/hizb-ut-tahrir-proscribed-as-terrorist-organisation>.
- January 15, 2024: U.K. Home Secretary James Cleverly announces his government will ban HT under the United Kingdom's terrorism laws. The decision comes after HT members chanted for jihad at a pro-Gaza rally in October 2023. Cleverly accuses HT of being an "antisemitic" organization "that actively promotes and encourages terrorism, including praising and celebrating the appalling 7 October attacks" by Hamas on Israel. The ban is expected to go into effect on January 19. Dominic Casciani, "Home Office to ban Hizb ut-Tahrir as terror group," BBC News, January 15, 2024, <https://www.bbc.com/news/uk-67984295>.
- December 23, 2023: HT Britain holds a conference called "Answer the Call: Liberate Palestine" in London. Hundreds of Muslims across the United Kingdom come to support the event. The topics discussed include the "fallacy of the two-state solution" and calling on the armies of Muslim-majority countries to "awaken from their slumber." One of the speakers at the event, Saliquir Abu Eesa, also delivers a speech called "How Do We Move the Armies?" where he states that it is the responsibility of Muslim countries and members of the military to wage jihad. - October 21, 2023: HT Britain organizes a pro-Gaza rally in London, during which attendees reportedly call for jihad. The rally follows an October 7 largescale Hamas attack on Israel, which killed approximately 1,200 people. In response to the attack, Israel declared war on Hamas and launched airstrikes and a ground invasion of Gaza, sparking pro-Gaza rallies worldwide. - October 7, 2023: Following news of Hamas's attack on Israel that day, Taji Mustafa, a senior official of HT Britain, praises the events, posting on Twitter Spaces, "It's a day most of us will remember, inshallah because it is a day of news, good news...really an amazing day in the sense that some things which were said to be undoable we now see the possibilities." Mustafa later adds, "Fighters from within occupied Gaza, within this massive prison, have been able to go into the Zionist entity, and the fear and the running of the Zionist left, right and centre, really something which has been a sight to behold." The discussion reportedly had an audience of 2,800 people. - May 13, 2023: HT America holds its annual Khilafah Conference, themed "Crises & Crossroads: The Urgency of Islam to Save the World," at Ambiance Banquets in Chicago. Speakers address America's declining hegemony, warn of the dangers of the "LGBT agenda," and discuss the "threat" of feminism to the family unit. The lineup of speakers lambast democracy and capitalism as failed systems that have led to a crumbling social order. They all conclude that only a caliphate under an Islamic system will save humanity. The conference is broadcast on Facebook Live and posted to YouTube. Violent history:

HT calls for unifying Muslim-majority countries under a single, global caliphate, while not advocating violence directly. However, individuals associated with HT have been involved in violent acts. Many younger members indoctrinated by HT, such as notorious ISIS figure “Jihadi John,” have gone on to join jihadist movements.

- April 2015: British media report that individuals associated with HT and the Nusra Front attacked civil activists in Aleppo, Syria. HT Britain denies the reports.¹⁶⁹
- Late March 2015: Turkish police stop nine British citizens from crossing into Syria to join jihadist groups. British police reveal that one of the nine, Waheed Ahmed—a student at Manchester University and the son of Rochdale town councilor Shakil Ahmed—is a member of HT. HT Britain’s chairman, Dr. Abdul Waheed, denies that Ahmed is a member.¹⁷⁰
- March 2015: Bangladeshi police arrest Islamist blogger Farabi Shafiur Rahman in connection with the February 26, 2015, murder of atheist writer Avijit Roy. Police accuse Rahman of belonging to HT and threatening over social media to kill Roy prior to his murder in a knife attack.¹⁷¹
- December 2014: Iranian-born Australian Man Haron Monis takes more than a dozen people hostage at Sydney’s Lindt Chocolat Café. Monis and two hostages are killed after a 16-hour standoff with police. Monis had attended a June 2014 HT lecture on the failings of the West.¹⁷²
- November 2012: Early in the month, Russian authorities arrest 18 Russian and Tajik citizens allegedly plotting bomb attacks around Moscow. After searching their apartments, authorities find “counterfeit money worth $1 million and 2 million euros”, as well as guns and explosives. On November 16, authorities charge nine Russian and Tajik citizens with belonging to HT, which is banned in those countries.¹⁷³
- November 4, 2010: Russian police say they have prevented an HT cell from blowing up a railway track near a Moscow train station.¹⁷⁴
- September 2007: German police arrest three members of HT splinter group IJU for plotting to attack restaurants, military and civilian airports, and nightclubs.¹⁷⁵
- July 29, 2006: Surveillance cameras film two Lebanese men carrying suitcases filled with propane-gas explosives onto trains in Germany. Investigators said one of the men, Youssef Mohammed el-Hajdib, may have ties to HT. The group denies that Hajdib was a member.¹⁷⁶

- 2004: British authorities arrest an HT member for joining al-Qaeda and plotting to attack financial targets in New York.¹⁷⁹
- April 30, 2003: Suicide bomber Asif Muhammad Hani, a British citizen, explodes at the entrance to Tel Aviv bar Mike’s Place. The bombing kills three and wounds 50. Israeli authorities identify a second bomber, Omar Khan Sharif, also a British citizen, whose explosives failed to detonate. Both men belonged to HT offshoot al-Muhajiroun. Associations:

Ties to Extremist Entities:

After joining HT, some members have gone on to join explicitly violent Islamist groups. These groups include:

- Al-Qaeda

Before joining al-Qaeda, both Khalid Sheikh Mohammed and former al-Qaeda in Iraq leader Abu Musab al-Zarqawi were members of HT.¹⁹⁷ HT members have also joined al-Qaeda in fighting the Assad regime in Syria's ongoing civil war.¹⁹⁸

- ISIS

Some HT recruits have gone on to join ISIS. ISIS fighter Mohammed Emwazi, a.k.a. "Jihadi John," reportedly attended HT events while in university in England.¹⁹⁹

- Nusra Front

HT members have joined, or tried to join, the Nusra Front. HT members have also joined Nusra Front rallies against the Syrian regime.²⁰⁰

- Al-Muhajiroun

Former HT leader Omar Bakri Muhammad founded al-Muhajiroun in 1996 with Anjem Choudary. Al-Muhajiroun is allegedly responsible for 50 percent of the terrorist attacks in the United Kingdom since 1995.²⁰¹

- Ansarullah Bangla Team \(ABT\)

Some HT members in Bangladesh have joined Bangladesh-based Islamist group ABT, which is sometimes referred to as "Ansar Bangla 8."²⁰²

One such member, Farabi Shafiur Rahman, was arrested in March 2015 for allegedly killing secular blogger Avijit Roy with a machete the preceding month. Rahman is under investigation for the deaths of other pro-secularist bloggers, including Ahmed Rashid Haider.²⁰³

Ties to Extremist Individuals:

- Omar Bakri Muhammad

Omar Bakri Muhammad led HT for approximately ten years before founding al-Muhajiroun, a more explicitly militant organization.²⁰⁴ Al-Muhajiroun has been connected to more than 50 percent of terrorist plots in the United Kingdom, according to British terrorism expert Raffaello Pantucci. Numerous members of al-Muhajiroun have committed violent crimes in the United Kingdom or become foreign fighters in the Middle East.²⁰⁵

Hizb ut-Tahrir

Media Coverage:

Western Media

Western media outlets tend to mirror their respective government's positions when debating a possible ban on HT. Both Reuters and the Associated Press have covered some HT activity, including a November 2012 incident in which Russian authorities charged nine HT members with plotting terrorist attacks.²⁰⁶ Over the years, the New York Times has provided more extensive coverage of the group's global activities. In its coverage, the Times has frequently depicted the group as a radical Islamist organization.

In early June 2005, Uzbek President Islam A. Karimov blamed HT for instigating an uprising in the city of Andijon. HT denied involvement.²⁰⁷ In its coverage, the New York Times repeated various Uzbek government accusations, typically referring to HT as a group seeking "to create governments ruled by its view of Islamic tradition."²⁰⁸ In May 2006, the Times reiterated German allegations of HT's involvement in a failed bomb plot aboard German trains involving two Lebanese men.²⁰⁹

The New York Times has also covered links between HT and the jihadist foreign fighter phenomenon in Iraq and Syria. In a March 2015 piece, NYT cited renowned counter extremist activist Maajid Nawaz, who recalled his own radicalization and membership in HT.²¹⁰ Author and journalist Mary Anne Weaver explored Britain's foreign fighter phenomenon and campus radicalization in an April 2015 piece for the Times.²¹¹

New York Times columnists have also debated whether HT's activities fall within the limits of free speech or constitute a wider threat. Richard Bernstein questioned whether Germany banned HT because of the country's embarrassment over the discovery of a Hamburg cell that aided the 9/11 hijackers,²¹² though the more common explanation is that HT's antisemitic literature ran afoul of Germany's hate-speech laws.²¹³

None of the above outlets provided coverage of HT's activities within the United States.

Of the three outlets, only Reuters provided original coverage of Australian Prime Minister Tony Abbott's February 2015 announcement that his government may ban HT.²¹⁴ British and Australian media outlets have provided a platform for debate on the possible policy change.

While HT calls for replacing existing regimes in Muslim countries with an Islamic caliphate, the Guardian's senior reporter, Sandra Laville, noted in 2005 that HT maintains that it is dedicated to non-violence.²¹⁵ The Guardian has also given a voice to HT in the debate. Uthman Badar, HT's spokesman in Australia, argued in a February 2015 Guardian op-ed that numerous Australians investigations into HT have yielded nothing incriminating. He defended HT as a "political activist group that adopts exclusively intellectual and political means to propagate its ideas, which oppose unjust domestic and foreign policies that target Islam and Muslims."²¹⁶

Rhetoric:

Zaki Tahir, HT America, May 13, 2023

Speaking at the HT America 2023 Khilafah Conference:

“The LGBT agenda refers to the strategic political and social movements designed to promote the acceptance and normalization of homosexuality, transgenderism, and other filthy acts through mediums such as media, education, and legislation. The LGBT agenda challenges traditional Islamic family values and norms, such as the importance of marriage and the preservation of gender roles. We are witnessing the erosion of the family unit in the West, where people wake up one morning and they decide that they feel like a woman and society should accept them as such. These are no longer isolated incidents, but rather they are becoming increasingly normalized and they are on the rise.”²¹⁷

Speaking at the HT America 2023 Khilafah Conference:

“The impact of the LGBT agenda is so dangerous that they are not planning on stopping anytime soon. If we do not stand up against this and uphold our Islamic values, very soon we will become overwhelmed with unimaginable issues. As Muslims we have a responsibility. And that responsibility to enjoin in good and forbid evil. We cannot stand by idly and watch as this agenda threatens to dismantle our families and corrupt our communities. We must take proactive steps to protect our families and promote Islamic values. And this requires us to speak out against harmful ideologies and actively work towards safeguarding our families from their harmful effects.”²¹⁸

Speaking at the HT America 2023 Khilafah Conference:

“Recently, we have seen a trend in our masjids of inviting political authorities to speak and raise votes for their campaigns. Campaigns that will enable them to take political office and legislate on behalf of the interests of the people who appointed them. They will legislate based upon what the people desires. And this clearly contradicts the sharia. This clearly contradicts Islam. As we know we do not legislate based off of what we desire, but rather, legislation is only for Allah subhana dualla. Only Allah can decide what is right and what is wrong. And one of the major issues we see from aligning with these political groups is one starts compromising their Islamic values. For example, many of these groups that support the LGBT agenda and other corrupt ideas that conflict with Islam, such as Zionism, liberalism, capitalism, to name a few. Aligning ourselves with the Democrats or the Republicans, this is not the solution to protect our families. Rather, it will prove to damage our way of life. Rather, it will prove to be so much harm upon us, to destroy our societies, to destroy our families. No longer can we stay silent while our board members and our masajids bring kuffar into the masjid to preach to us. No longer can we stay silent when we see imams aligning themselves with fahisha in the name of tolerance. We must speak out against these activities, and we need to empower ourselves against those who are doing gubza, who are holding the house of Allah subhana dualla under their control and they are corrupting the house of Allah subhana dualla. By prioritizing our Islamic identity, we will be protected from this LGBT agenda.”²¹⁹

Zaki Tahir, HT America, May 13, 2023

Speaking at the HT America 2023 Khilafah Conference:

“We must not let the LGBT agenda, which is being promoted by Western societies, infiltrate our communities and threaten our way of life. Do not forget that it is secularism that separates deen from the state. It is secularism that causes issues like these to arise, issues that blatantly go against the fitra and our natural predisposition and violate the commands of Allah subhana dualla. Issues such as bestiality and homosexuality that are becoming widespread are the direct result of this crooked ideology of secularism. You will never find these issues in Islam because you must understand that Islam is a deen. It is a complete way of life.

“As individuals we can only do so much to safeguard our families. We will truly be protected from these corrupt ideas once we reestablish the Islamic way of life. Therefore, let us strive to protect our families and uphold the values and principles that Allah subhana dualla ordained for us.”²²⁰

Slide during speech at the HT America 2023 Khilafah Conference:

“LGBT is a natural byproduct of secular capitalism. It is a secular capitalist problem.

“According to the secular capitalist ideology, LGBY should be protected. Thus, we witness the ongoing momentum of the LGBT movement. Based on secular capitalism, it is bizarre to oppose people’s freedom to practice any form of consensual sex.”²²¹
